Air Up: A Expensive Beverage in Fashion Among Children

From elastic wristbands to pipas, 9 the fads of recreation are generally cheap and fun. However, the latest craze is a bottle of beverage that costs 9 which comes with capsules of scent that trick the brain into thinking that the water is cola or fruit juice.

The growing popularity of Air Up, with the bottles being sold for around 9 of £30, is a dilemma for parents.

On the one hand, it's expensive to pay 9 when the reusable bottles can cost some pounds, but on the other hand, it can keep children away from sugary drinks.

Lena Jüngst, who co-founded Air Up while a student, is intrigued by its status as a desired 9 in British classrooms. "It's a really nice effect", she said, adding that the company aims to make 9 responsible and appealing and encourage adults to drink more water.

How Air Up Works

9 The Air Up bottles work with circular capsules that fit into the neck of the bottle. Drinking through the straw 9 creates suction that draws water and air from the outside through the capsule into the mouth.

9 According to the "How it works" section on the Air Up website, "approximately 80% of what we perceive as flavor is derived 9 from what we are smelling". Therefore, what makes you experiment with water with flavor is simply smelling the aroma – made 9 from natural ingredients like fruits, herbs and spices – that come from the capsule into the glass.

Nearly 30 9 Flavors of Capsules

- Limão
- Limão
- Raspberry
- Chocolate Laranja
- Café Gelado

Jüngst says that the "ceiling is the limit" when it comes to 9 flavor. "Cola" is the most popular, but "you could have bacon or summer rain". "We want to go much more 9 experimental and wild."

Impact on Health

There is a small transfer of aroma to the water, but 9 is so small that it has no impact on the body, says the company, comparing it to inhaling fresh bread from a bakery.
