Shark - A very good player.

Poker is a game which combines elements of luck with elements of skill. This means 2 that in the short run, anybody can win regardless of how well they play. In the long run, however, everybody's 2 luck tends to balance out, and skill levels typically determine the winners and the losers. Since each individual player plays 2 differently, and at his own skill level, a rudimentary food chain forms over the long run, with each player losing 2 to those who play better than they do, but profiting from those who play worse. The players at the top 2 of the poker food chain do very well and are often wealthy and famous. Those at the bottom of the 2 food chain play very poorly, and so provide opportunities for everybody who is higher up.

chain metaphor is one 2 that is commonly used in the poker community. Players who play well and are higher up the food chain are 2 often referred to as "card sharks," or simply, "sharks." You may also hear these players referred to as "card sharps," 2 or "vacuum cleaners," or as being "tough," or "strong." The weaker players who are closer to the bottom of the 2 food chain are commonly referred to as "fish." Fish are also known by a variety of disparaging names including "donks," 2 "donkeys," "muppets," "monkeys," "bozos," and many others. Occasionally, you will hear someone who is a really big loser referred to 2 as a "whale." The term "whale" usually connotes large losses at high limits, and can apply to either the pit 2 or the poker room.

Many new, inexperienced, or recreational players do not like to play against sharks. There is a good 2 reason for this. If one person is playing at a skill level which is significantly higher than the other players 2 in the game, he can often win a large amount fairly quickly, leaving most everyone else in the game a 2 loser. A shark may refer to a game like this as being a “berry patch.” Weaker players do not want 2 to play against someone who dominates the game and they do not like feeling as if they are being taken 2 advantage of. Many will shy away from a game if they spot a player with a reputation for being a 2 shark. They tend to prefer a “friendly game,” where players are there to have fun playing poker and are not 2 really concerned with extracting maximum profit. When you first sit down in a game, it is not always easy to 2 identify the sharks and the fish. It is a good idea to watch the action, even when you are not 2 involved, so that you can try to get a line on how everyone plays. And keep in mind the old 2 poker truism, if you look around the table and don't see the fish, it's probably you.

The bottom line is that 2 if you want to make a profit playing poker, you have to smart about game selection, and you also have 2 to become a shark. Being smart about game selection means avoiding games where the potential for long term profit is 2 minimal or nonexistent. This means avoiding games where not enough fish are present or the field is too tough for 2 you. Try to seek out games with a high ratio of fish to sharks. Do not try to avoid every 2 shark or every single player who is tougher than you. First of all, this will not even be possible unless 2 you play very well, as there are typically at least a couple of decent players in every game.

More importantly, if 2 you are to become a shark, you need to have the correct approach. Understand that becoming a shark is a 2 lifelong process that is never complete. No matter how well you play, there will always be areas of your game 2 that can be improved upon; there are always ways of doing things better. If you can accept this, then every 2 time you play is a learning opportunity. If you are paying attention, you can always learn something, especially from those 2 players who play better than you do. When you are playing against a shark, take the opportunity to watch how 2 they handle themselves in various situations. Look specifically for spots where they acted differently from how you would have, and 2 ask why. You can also develop your game by watching the fish. Being able to anticipate in advance how your 2 opponent will act is a huge advantage. Look for area where they consistently play poorly, and be ready to take 2 advantage of that. The best players are never satisfied with their level of play and are always hungry to optimize. 2 That is exactly the approach it takes to become a poker shark.

*Card sharks is different than a "card sharp" or 2 "cardsharp". Sharks use skill to win, while sharps are card manipulators or cheaters.
