A EU document reveals concerns about the credibility and human rights in Tunisia

A leaked internal report from the EU's diplomatic service (EEAS) expresses fears that the credibility of the European Union is at risk as it attempts to balance growing concerns about repression and dissent in Tunisia while preserving a controversial migration agreement with the North African country.

The report, obtained by the Guardian, describes "a clear deterioration of the political climate and a reduction in civic space" under Tunisian President Kais Saied, who suspended parliament and concentrated power since the start of his 2024 mandate.

EU officials hope Saied will continue in power after presidential elections on October 6. The campaign was marked by the arrest of opponents and persecution of dissidents under charges of spreading false information.

The document aims to address concerns about the 2024 EU-Tunisia migration pact, which seeks to prevent people from reaching Europe by leaving the country, a move that has led to accusations of financing dictators.

Um equilíbrio cada vez mais difícil

The five-page report details the arrest of politicians, journalists, lawyers, and business owners before the next presidential elections. It also mentions the detention of people working for NGOs that assist immigrants, "most of whom are partners in the implementation of programs funded by the EU," according to the document.

Since the report was written, more people have been detained, including human rights activist and veteran journalist Sihem Bensedrine, former head of the Truth and Dignity Commission, established after the Arab Spring to investigate decades of human rights abuses. She was arrested under a preventive regime on August 1st, following an investigation widely considered based on false charges.

Before her arrest, Bensedrine denounced political repression and the "toxic climate" in Tunisia, citing racist speeches by Saied against immigrants from sub-Saharan Africa.

The report notes "public indignation and scrutiny" over violence, mistreatment, and other abuses against immigrants and asylum seekers, "in which authorities are generally involved," raising "critical questions about EU support for border management."

The report was commissioned by Borrell and sent to 27 EU foreign ministers.

The Guardian shared a copy with Hussein Baoumi, Amnesty International, who said the report's analysis reflects a very serious situation. "There is no way to hide this reality: the situation in Tunisia in terms of human rights and democratic backsliding is very worrying."

In the final part of the report, however, it "seems to have been written by someone completely different" who did not read the previous pages, according to Baoumi. "He is saying that the EU should continue to engage more with Tunisian authorities, expand cooperation, and partnership, even though it is clearly aware that this would be a violation of EU commitments to promote human rights, international law, and the rule of law."

"Expanding cooperation with Tunisia for international migration control," Baoumi said, "gives the EU some leverage over Tunisia".
